Innovation Transfer Network

Brian Reilly, Capital Region Economic Development Corporation

The purpose of the Innovation Transfer Network (ITN) is to increase the rate of transfer of innovative ideas and technology from Southcentral Pennsylvania's institutions of higher education to the private sector.

A dynamic partnership among the region's higher educational institutions, economic development organizations, business and government, the ITN is designed to support technology-focused economic development and the creation of high-tech jobs.

The ITN provides companies with a gateway to discover how they can partner with colleges to address their innovation needs. The ITN has fourteen institutions of higher education in Cumberland, Dauphin and Lancaster counties of Southcentral Pennsylvania.
